Cantina Collection by jehs+laub

Cantina encourages the evolving nature of work today by providing designers and end-users with a modular lounge collection poised to adapt to any office landscape. Designed by jehs+laub this low-profile seating system maintains a finely tailored and modern aesthetic while delivering comfort and flexibility.

Through Cantina's construction and design, open offices, lounges and cafes can be defined and divided into quiet work areas or collaborative spaces while being cohesive in their atmosphere. The backless, mid-back and high-back seating options assist in creating customizable configurations that quickly integrate into work life. At the same time, the working-height seat height allows for seamless pairing with everything from café to laptop tables, ideal for fostering communication and productivity. Effortlessly positioned on the eye-catching, geometric base made of slender tubular steel, Cantina provides comfort with abundant legroom.

Cantina epitomizes an adaptation to changing workstyles. By shifting work postures from traditional to casual, the Cantina Collection addresses a wide variety of applicational needs, from busy student centers and lively cafés to creative hubs within the modern workplace.

Markus Jehs and Jürgen Laub met each other during their academic studies of industrial design in Germany and became friends after an internship in New York in 1990. Shortly after they graduated, they set up their studio, jehs+laub, in 1994. From that time on, they started to design furniture and lamps for Italian companies, such as Cassina, Ycami and Nemo. They soon expanded their collaboration with brands like Fritz Hansen, Knoll International, Renz, Stelton, Schönbuch, Cor and Wilkhahn. Davis Furniture began its long-standing collaboration with jehs+laub in 2009, and since that time, the designers have created multiple award-winning collections, including the Ginkgo family, A-Collection, Poise Occasional tables, Sachet, Reed and Hue, to name a few.

Founded in 1944, Davis Furniture is a leading voice in the contract furniture industry focused on placing Design at the center of every initiative while looking to the future of the workplace.
